Let's paint the town! Council plans grant

Mayor Ed Buck came to last Wednesday's Chamber of Commerce meeting with a new plan to get the downtown area looking its best. "In the past, we have talked about painting the downtown," he noted, adding that a "long discussion" by Council that morning had resulted in tentative plans to offer business owners grants toward paint and labor for the buildings that are in need of freshening up.

Council had worked up a list of "those buildings that could stand painting. A half dozen buildings, if they were painted, would really improve the look of downtown," Mayor Buck said, a continuation of the project which started with the new sidewalks installed in 1999 and continuing with the pavement overlay last year.

The Town had considered being part of a Main Street program, but did not have enough pre-1950 buildings to qualify. "The government programs would probably have cost the property owners more," the mayor said, adding that the owners would still be required to share the cost of the painting. There may not be enough funds to repaint all the needed businesses this year, but the project could be ongoing, he noted.

"It's important to keep our business sector more viable," and an attractive main street could attract more business to town.

The mayor also stated his dissatisfaction with the amount of policing Elk Point receives. "In the statistics we get back [from the RCMP]

Blood donor clinic attracts new donors

While the blood donor clinic hosted last Tuesday by the Elk Point and District Lions Club didn't meet its goal of 100 donors, Lion Jonny Nielsen said the Canadian Blood Services "were quite happy" with the turnout of 75 donors who contributed 59 units of blood. A few donors were turned away because of low iron levels in their blood and one because of age limits.

Only 10 to 15 of the people were previous donors, and the Blood Services personnel were very happy to have close to 60 new donors in attendance. "They will definitely try to come back," Nielsen noted. Thirty eight people had made appointments to donate, and "we never suspected so many would come in off the street." Many donors showed up during the last half hour of the clinic, and Nielsen said hours might be extended next time to meet the needs of those wishing to donate who work longer hours.

Canadian Blood Services is planning to set up a part time satellite clinic in Lloydminster for the convenience of donors.

All those who attended last week's clinic will be contacted by telephone next time a blood donor clinic is hosted in Elk Point.

■ Minor Hockey Awards Night

Shane St. Arnault named 2000-01 Coach of the Year

By Doug Bassett
Review Sports

"I love coaching, and I love hockey." That quote is from Shane St. Arnault, this year's Coach of the Year, and it pretty well sums up why he received this year's prestigious award at the Elk Point Minor Hockey Banquet on Saturday night. This is Shane's first year of coaching in Elk Point, but we're sure it certainly won't be his last. It was a lucky break for us when Shane moved here from Mallaig and took on the challenge of coaching the Midget Thunder.

The Thunder had a tough start, many discipline problems had to be sorted out, and ant one point early in the season the Thunder was leading the league in penalty minutes with 150 minutes more than the next closest team. After Christmas they settled down, going nine wins, four losses and two ties, then winning their zone, making it to Provincials.

Shane introduced his players and thanked all the parents, assistant coach Ron Croteau and manager Marty Hines for their support. Ron Croteau, who is no stranger to hockey himself, received a well-deserved plaque for his 10 to 12 years of dedication to the Elk Point system. Ron started with micro novice and as he stated Saturday night, "It didn't seem that long. It goes by in a hurry, so enjoy it while it lasts."

A big thanks goes out to Susan MacKinnon for organizing the evening, and to all the moms for their great cooking. The potluck supper was great. There's a summary of the rest of the evening.

Micro Novice, with 14 or 15 players, was coached by Mike Rainey, who thanked all his parents for their support and offered special thanks to Brent Becker, his backup guy when Mike couldn't make it.

Novice coach Gary Marceniuk also introduced his players, then thanked assistants Geoff Bishop, Evan Carlson, Edie Lowry, Tracy Loughran and the rest of the parents.

Atoms were coached by Lane Lorensen, who introduced his boys and thanked his assistants, Darrel Wickham, Nadine Weir and Bob Bezpalko.

Peewees coach Dave Cousins introduced his crew, then thanked his assistants, Brian Huseby, Ted Genereux and manager Susan MacKinnon. He also thanked the Atoms who came up from the farm to help out, Craig Dallaire, Ryan MacDonald and Kody Wickham. Dave presented the Alex Kurash Memorial award for the peewee player who showed the most continued improvement, positive attitude and coachability. This year's recipient, Nicholas Myshaniuk, is an excellent choice. Keep up the good work, Nicky.

The Midget Girls Storm, coached by George Hahn, is a young team with a great future. Only one girl will be leaving, Joanne "JoJo" deMoissac, who received a plaque for her many years with the team. He also thanked manager Gillian Cousins, assistant Jacques deMoissac and trainer Diane Proski.

Then the Bantam Colts were introduced, this year's Bantam D provincial champions, a great feat for any team, but even greater when you combine two hockey systems and make them gel like Buddy Bensmiller and Gary Etherington did this year. The jackets look great, with "Provincial Champions" on the back, and the provincial banners will fly proudly in both arenas.

Another award was presented, in his absence, to Evan Carlson, the Safety Trainers award. Geoff Bishop was recognized as the referee coordinator, and given a gift of appreciation, and Lyle Marianchuk received a big vote of thanks for his work with the initiation group.

Then of course there was yours truly receiving the biggest surprise of the night. It really wasn't necessary, but thanks to everyone. I really do appreciate it, and I still dream that someday, someone I know will go through our system and play for the Maple Leafs.

After the banquet, the elections for next year's executive were held. Dave Cousins is now the new Minor Hockey president, thanks to Dave for taking on the job. Susan MacKinnon will become the treasurer, Gillian Cousins the secretary, Mike MacDonald will become the registrar, Tracy Loughran will remain as bingo chairperson, and Gary Marcenik volunteered for equipment manager.

From myself and all the rest of minor hockey, I want to thank Brian Huseby for taking on the president's job last year. I know better than anyone how much time and effort goes into it, and how many headaches it can "every day is a good day be, but like Brian said, for hockey."

Talent to explode in Elk Point on April 28

By Dee Pankiw
Journal Contributor

Young performers will be entertaining at the F. G. Miller High School gym on Saturday, April 28, all competing in a preliminary show for the Edmonton Northlands Talent Explosion 2001.

The winner will take home $100 and the runner up will earn $50 from Edmonton Northlands. The top two entries from Elk Point earn the right to compete at Klondike Days for further prizes and a shot at the national competition.

Contestants must be between the ages of five and 21 years. There are two competitions in the Talent Explosion: one especially for those 12 years and under. These talented young people sing, play musical instruments, dance, or present a short dramatic presentation. Northlands rules state there may be up to four participants, and the entry may be up to four minutes long.

Elk Point has hosted several of these shows in the past, and those who have attended have been treated to a great show. Our winners have done well in Edmonton, and some of them, like Clayton Bellamy, have gone on to pursue performing careers. This year's show is being hosted by the Class of 2001.

Tickets will be available at the door. The show will start at 7 p.m.

The Talent Explosion will be followed by a Battle of the Bands in which amateur bands play for a teen dance while competing for prizes. Contestants must contact Dee at 780-724-2250 on or before April 23 to enter either competition. The entry fee is $10 per entry in either competition.

It's garage sale time - sponsor / buyer - beware!

By Deanna Easthope
FCSS Director

Spring has arrived, and with the arrival of spring, people seem to be thinking of "Garage sales". This is an active community, private enterprise function that most people just love to attend. Garage sales help people get rid of their "junk" which becomes valuable to someone else. Anyway, a word of warning to all the wise "garage sale" sponsors and buyers. There are some items both parties need to check and beware of that they don't sell or buy. The following list comes from the Lakeland Injury Control Project Team and

Health Canada.

Baby Gates - gates with large diamond-shaped openings and a large "V" at the top can no longer be sold in Canada. Children can get caught in these openings and strangle.

Baby Walkers - walkers with wheels should not be sold or used due to the risk of serious injury from falling down stairs, from entanglement in electric appliance cords and from increased access to hot surfaces.

Car Seats - car seats must meet the Canadian Motor Vehicle Safety Standard and carry the compliance label stating the size of the child for which the seat is designed.

Children's

Sleepwear - loose garments including nightgowns, bathrobes, baby doll pajamas and loose pajamas are especially flammable if made of cotton or cotton blends. These garments should be made of polyester, nylon or polyester/nylon blends to meet flammability requirements set out by Health Canada.

Cribs - all cribs sold in Canada must meet safety requirements set out in regulations by the Federal Government in September 1986. All cribs sold or imported into Canada prior to that date are considered unsafe and dangerous; their sale is illegal and they must be destroyed! Cribs with visible signs of damage, missing parts, or missing instructions and warning information must be avoided. Cribs complying with the regulation must have printed on them or affixed to them information that identifies the manufacturer and the date of manufacture. It is also very important that the mattress to be used in the crib is not higher (thicker) than 15 cm (6 inches) and that it fits snugly along the four sides of the crib.

Protective Sport Equipment - protective equipment that is old or that has visible signs of damage should never be used and must be discarded. Hockey helmets and face protectors sold in Canada must meet safety standards set out by CSA International. In addition, they should not be used if previously subjected to a major impact, if subjected to intensive use over two consecutive seasons, if older than five years or showing any signs of damage. Bicycle and roller blading helmets are designed to protect the head against a single impact. In addition, because of their light weight, they are relatively fragile. When purchased second hand, these products are not likely to offer proper head protection and should be avoided. New bicycle and rollerblading helmets certified to meet recognized safety standards are relatively inexpensive and are well worth the investment.

These are only a few examples, but beware, everyone!

Danin a fresh new look in stationery

Fresh as paint is the only way to describe the newly renovated and newly decorated Danin Office Supplies Ltd., which celebrated with a gala grand opening last Friday.

Owner Diane Balash has made a lot of changes since she purchased the business in early winter, and the result is an eye-catching store with plenty of new and exciting merchandise to choose from.

Joining the expanded lines of stationery, school supplies and computer needs are giftware ranging from Bob's Barbed Wire western wreaths to unique log candleholders from Manitoba. Great gift ideas for kids include foil balloons featuring such characters as Barbie, the Teletubbies and Bugs Bunny, and an excellent line of entertaining children's books. Other recent arrivals on Danin's shelves are magnetic picture frames and the cutest bugs in town just waiting to go home and live in your house plant pots.

Scrapbooking supplies have been in for some weeks now and from edging scissors to multi-colored photo corners, there is everything you will need to create a marvelous memory book.

The store's stationery lines are continually growing to serve the needs of businesses and the individual, with ledgers a big seller at the current time as everyone counts down to the tax season. If you don't see what you need on Danin's shelves, they will be happy to track it down and order it for you.

Speaking of tax time, the location is also the home of Money

Crunchers, Diane's formerly home-based accounting and tax preparation business, which is busy virtually nonstop at this time of year.

Tucked in another corner is the Elk Point Review, and publisher Clare Gauvreau joined editor Vicki Brooker in wishing their former co-worker all the best in her new venture.

Winners of Danin's

grand opening draws were Lorraine Danyluk, Heidi Kozicky and Verona Lea Flanders, each winning a gift basket, and Joan Palamarek, winning a barbed wire wreath. The Review also had some draws, with Mae Hendrickson and Dick Millar winning free classified ads and Dennis Lemp of Dewberry a Review subscription.

■ April 8 - 14

National Wildlife Week

It's a rite of spring in Canada. No sooner than the snow begins to melt, we shed our tame temperament and go wild during the week of April 10. That's the birth date of one of the distinguished "fathers of conservation" in Canada - the late Jack Miner. From Whitehorse to Wabana, we come together to pay tribute to the wild inhabitants of this land.

The aim of this year's National Wildlife Week, April 8 to 14, is to spread the vital message that conservation is a community affair. It's all about welcoming native flora and fauna back into cities, suburbs, villages and towns. The message is reflected in this year's NWW theme, "Our Community Includes Wildlife. Does Yours?"

The Canadian Wildlife Federation is encouraging communities nationwide to celebrate wildlife in all its glory through nature hikes, mall displays, poster contests, film festivals, and habitat restoration. They will also honor Canadian youth for outstanding conservation efforts with NWW awards.

Communities for Wildlife

Communities nationwide will receive a package this week from the CWF to promote its brand new Communities for Wildlife program.

Communities for Wildlife will be of interest to people who want to work together to make their community a better and healthier place for wildlife and themselves. "Whether it's a local park, nearby wetland, meadow, forest or the property surrounding your municipal offices, chances are very good that you'll find a project suitable for your community," said CWF's executive vice president, Colin Maxwell.

1-800-563-9453 or visit www.cwf.fcf.org.

Habitat 2000

In 1989, CWF added an educational component to National Wildlife Week entitled Habitat 2000. The program enabled students to carry out habitat improvement projects for wildlife in their schoolyards and communities. Since its inception, close to half a million young people have taken part in Habitat 2000.

Although Habitat 2000 is coming to a close this year to make way for a brand new school program in September, grants of up to $200 per class are still available until June 2001. Funds must be used to purchase materials such as soil, seedlings, rakes, shovels and plants. Once equipped with the necessary tools, students work together to help improve habitat for wildlife.

CWF also reaches out to millions of Canadians with its NWW message through an extensive public awareness campaign. Hundreds of communities have joined in this "celebration of wildlife" by hosting their own festivals and wildlife events. Activities include nature walks, mall and museum displays, clean-up initiatives, wildlife film festivals, art shows and poster contests, just to name a few.

If you would like to give back to wildlife some of what it has lost, then why not get together with family, friends, neighbors, local school children or seniors to initiate projects to improve habitat for wildlife in your community. Contact, CWF today at 1-800-563-9453 or visit their website at www.cwf.fcf.org.

Some of the projects available through Communities for Wildlife include how to make and maintain bird feeders, how to nurture wetlands or turn an abandoned railway into a wildlife corridor, along with ideas on how and where to plant native trees, shrubs and flowers to attract a variety of wildlife to your community.

Please join in the NWW celebrations by making your community a safe haven for wildlife. To order your copy of the Communities for Wildlife package, contact CWF's Resource Centre at

A blessed Easter to all

Easter is upon us - the holiday symbolizing new birth and resurrection, and bringing us the message that hope springs eternal.

We can see the resurrection for ourselves, as the first new shoots poke out of the dead leaves and plant debris in our flower beds, giving us a sign that a new growing season is on its way and that the world will once again become the green and fruitful beauty we treasure each summer.

New life is all around us - pastures full of new calves, all bouncing around in the sheer joy of being alive, new lambs frolicking, puppies tumbling in the wake of their mothers. Soon people will be picking up their perforated cardboard cartons of baby chicks and taking them home to be lovingly cared for under a cosy brooder lamp, and those who have Bantam hens will probably find them hatching their own eggs.

The crows and geese are back, the robins will be along soon to build their nests and raise another year's families.

Celebrate this season of hope in your favorite way - attending church, nibbling the ears of a chocolate bunny, poking around in the garden. Happy Easter, everyone! And happy spring!

Let's hear it about volunteers!

Your group's information is needed by April 19

What are all you volunteers doing out there? We'd like to hear about it.

How many volunteers does your organization have? Could you estimate how many hours a year they put in, at anything from checking in library books to working bingos to wrapping a mountain of gifts for Santas Anonymous?

What are your club's pet projects?

How does your group reward those volunteers for their efforts?

Those are some of the questions we'd like answered for the Review's Volunteer Week tribute to Elk Point and district volunteers.

Elk Point has a long-standing tradition for being a community built by volunteer efforts. We know that the volunteering spirit is alive and well, and would like to hear about all your club's projects and the ways you help out the community and its people.

Please drop us a line and tell us the name of your organization, how many members you have, what kind of volunteer activities you're involved with, and if possible, an estimate of how many volunteer hours your members have contributed during the past twelve months. We would also like to hear what you do for fun, and especially how you reward your volunteers for all their efforts.

Individual volunteers, those not a part of an organization, are also very important and we would like to hear about them, too. Just send us their name and tell us what they do to help make the community great.

Please send your information to Box 309, Elk Point, fax it to 724-2144 or drop it off at the Review office by April 19 for our special Volunteer Week edition.

Snowmobile Club busy, snow or no

They may have been disappointed by this winter's major lack of snow, but the Elk Point Trail Riders Snowmobile Club has been kept busy all winter on a major project, and are looking forward to additional projects this spring.

The Trail Riders have been in existence for three years, and have been affiliated with the Alberta Snowmobile Association throughout that time. They had 63 members this year, "even with no snow," says club spokesman Dale Rinas.

Their major project, now nearing completion, is a trail map project involving six snowmobile clubs. The map covers an area from the Saskatchewan border to west of St. Paul, from north of Highway 55 to south of Mannville, backed up with advertising from hotels, motels, gas stations and other supporting businesses and agencies. It is to be sold through the participating clubs, tourist information centres and advertisers' businesses, and will be ready by fall for the 2000-2004 snowmobiling seasons.

Interest in snowmobiling in this area is widespread, coming in response to the club's website, with a big interest from the Edmonton area from people who don't wish to tackle more mountainous regions with their sleds and some inquiries from as far away as overseas.

The club is currently working on the development of trails north of Elk Point to Kehewin Lake and Bangs Lake, and are planning to move their warmup hut on the trail to Garnier Lake to a site on the Iron Horse Trail near the Canadian Salt Plant. They are also proposing a trail over Moose Mountain to Garnier Lake, which will link up with the Bonnyville Snowmobile Club's and Trail Riders' trails.

Both the Alberta Snowmobile Association and the local clubs promote "bringing safety into the sport," Rinas said. The ASA visited F. G. Miller High School this year with their Sled Smart program, and the Trail Riders are planning to have snowmobile safety courses in this area. For those sledders who do venture out to the avalanche-prone mountain regions, the club has purchased four avalanche kits, containing transmitter beacons, shovels and probes, which are available for rent.

Powerlifter second in Canada

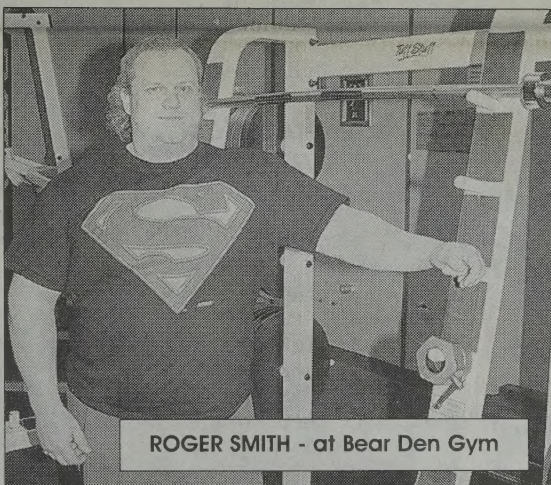

Elk Point athlete Roger Smith recently returned from Quebec City with the second place medal for his weight range from the Canadian Power Lifting Championships, and third place overall.

The proprietor of Bear Den Gym in downtown Elk Point lifted 190 kilograms, a close second to the winner, who lifted 192.5 kilograms. Smith says there's "a lot to the technique of it. You have to pause on your chest." Not knowing this, Smith only got one lift out of a possible three, but said it was "a learning experience - there were a lot of little tricks I didn't know about, like wearing a bench shirt like everybody else." The shirts, made of a wet-suit-type material, seem to assist in the lifting process.

Still he was "really happy" with the competition, although "a little disappointed" with his placing. "I didn't lift what I can. This was my opening weight and I had planned to go a lot higher. But I guess it was pretty good for my first time. It was exciting to be in the spotlight."

Smith found Quebec City to be beautiful. "I'd like to go back when I'm not in contest mode. This time I had to concentrate on eating lots and not walking too much to stay in my weight range, and also you really need more than five days to see it all." Smith expressed thanks to the Servus Credit Union for making it possible for him to attend the championships.

From Brian in quarantine: memories of Italy and Greece

By Brian Poitras

F. G. Miller Student Journalist

Well, I am sitting in my basement right now, just like all the other kids who went on the school trip to Italy and Greece. The supervisors are probably doing the same thing, as they aren't allowed to leave their homes either.

You see, the people of Elk Point have us trapped in quarantine, and understandably so.

None of us are bitter, we know that the foot and mouth disease is very serious and can ruin an entire country's beef market, anoling with any other cloven hoofed animals.

Sitting here also gives me time to tell everyone about our great trip.

On Friday, March 23, 19 students and four supervisors were on a bus at five in the morning to go to Edmonton and catch a plane leaving at noon. You can imagine the excitement, so nobody slept. Our first plane ride was to Toronto, and this was many people's first takeoff, so we talked all the way there. The next ride was nine hours to Munich, Germany, and from there to Rome, Italy. Now, we left at noon from Edmonton and we arrived at noon in Rome. There was no time change after 14 hours in the air and five hours of waiting at different airports, and I guarantee that nobody got a good amount of sleep in that time.

After going to our hotel and getting cleaned up, our tired group met the groups from Portland, Denver and Manitoba who would be traveling with us. We had already met the group from Hinton, Alberta, as they had the same flight arrangements as we did and we talked on the plane.

Our tour guide for the whole trip, Valentino, took us on a walking tour of downtown Rome for our first day. Most of us weren't expecting much for a first day, but we were very pleasantly surprised. It was nothing any of us had ever seen before. The famous Spanish Steps were covered in people from Rome just sitting around and talking. The people in the streets would have looked like ants from above. There were so many people shopping in downtown Rome, they were climbing over each other. And when I say shopping, I mean for some high class stuff. The common shops in downtown Rome are Armani, Gucci, etc. The cheapest stuff in these stores was around $500. A little too much.

When we finally got to our beds, it didn't take long for anyone to go to sleep, as we had been awake for almost 48 hours.

Our second day in Rome was my personal favorite. We saw everything I wanted to see in one day, starting with Vatican City. The Vatican's beauty cannot be described in words. It is something that everyone should have the honor of seeing, no matter what religion you are. When you walk into a small courtyard, there is perfectly green grass and wonderful pieces of art, both ancient and modern. Once inside, the first thing we got to see was the world famous Sistine Chapel. Michaelangelo's masterpiece was amazing. We've all seen pictures of it, but to see it right above you was something else.

From there, we were guided to the world's largest church, St. Peter's Basilica. This was the most humbling experience of my life. The church can hold two football fields, and the beauty inside was so surprising for me. There were sculptures of popes and saints, there was solid gold, there were paintings, some of the best artwork ever. I think this was Mrs. Lindquist's favorite part of the trip, nobody could wipe the smile off her face.

We happened to be at the Vatican on a Sunday, so mass was taking place while we were in the church, in one small corner, while in another corner, a baby was being baptized. Then came the great finale, a chance to hear the man himself speak. We walked into a large courtyard of the Vatican where we could see a red carpet hanging out of a window about a mile away. Within five minutes the Pope came to the window and gave the large crowd a few words in Italian then waved to the crowd before going back into his room. I don't know anything that compares to actually seeing the Pope and hearing him speak.

From the Vatican, we took the subway to the massive Coliseum, made famous most recently by the movie "Gladiator." The Coliseum proves the saying, "They don't make them like they used to," because it was built way over a thousand years ago and it still stands today. To build this must have taken some extremely good Roman architecture, it fit in as many as 50,000 Romans cheering on the Gladiators as they fought to the death. Yes, that really did happen. The movie "Gladiator" is not made up.

We left the Coliseum to go across the street to the Forum. Over the five minute walk, Kurt Kozicky swears he saw the model Fabio in the street, the guy in the "I can't believe it's not butter" commercials. I don't know if I believe him, he was just seeing things. Anyway, the Forum is sort of old

Elk Point Elementary ROCKS!

A packed crowd of screaming fans greeted act after act of rock stars Thursday afternoon as Elk Point Elementary School's teachers, staff and parents entertained the students with a wildly exciting air guitar concert.

The ever-popular

KISS was first on the program, their rendition of "Rock and Roll All Night" being a really hard act to follow. The crowd chanted "We want more! We want more" over and over until the next act, four fifties-style rock-'n'-rollers billed as Betty and the Shoop Shoops serenaded "The Leader of the Pack," who roared through on a scooter on his way to destruction.

Then it was Mickey's Girls, to use the term 'girls' a little loosely, cavorting cheerleader-style and chanting "Hey Mickey, You're so Fine" to a delightful big-eared mouse, who leapt onto their backs in a pyramid finale.

The Moffats, with a long haired (although mustachioed) lady vamping the singers, offered "Bing! Bang! Boom!" while Bonnie Raitt and the Moose Mountain Hillbillies glowed in blacklight, complete with fishermen and canoe, in "Fishing in the Dark."

The concert wound up with a quintet dressed as green jelly beans as they led the crowd in an action song about avoiding a "Jelly Bean Bellyache."

ROCK STARS EXTRAORDINAIRE - KISS opened the show and were a hard act to follow, with students chanting "We Want More!" in their wake.

FISHIN' IN THE DARK with Bonnie Raitt and the Moose Mountain Hillbillies, looked a little risky with this rather iffy canoe.

BELLYACHE PREVENTION was made simple by this zany crew and their action song.

MICKEY AND HIS GIRLS brought down the house with a showy pyramid ending to their popular number.

THE SHOOP SHOOPS brought back the '50s.

MOFFATS AND THE VAMP - Who WAS that long haired lady, anyhow?

what's NEWS at the LIBRARY?

Take time to read - or listen to a book on tape!

By Daphne Schnurer
Librarian

Are you finding it hard to fit reading time into your busy schedule? Having to re-read the first chapter because it's been a week since you picked up your book and have forgotten everything? Here are some helpful alternatives you may want to consider.

Magazines are a great option when you're trying to squeeze in some reading time. The library has a great selection ranging from Macleans to Better Homes and Gardens. Another excellent alternative is Books on Tape. You will be surprised that you can find your favorite boos as well as best sellers such as the popular Chicken Soup books. Pop them in your tape player while you're working at home or riding in the car.

Maybe you need to make more time for you. There are some wonderful books to help you make it happen, such as Managing Your Time, How to Get Organized When You Don't Have the Time and One Minute Manager - all are great choices.

Just in time for Easter, we have some new videos, also the sequel to The Wind in the Willows, The Willows in Winter. Also check out our great home and gardening videos.

Remember, you can now keep your library books for three weeks, videos and magazines for a week. Renewals can be done over the phone, and if you can't remember what books you have on loan, ask the library staff to print you out a list.

Storytime - Fridays at 10:30 a.m., everyone welcome. Join us for stories and crafts.

Seniors Tea - May 1 at 2:00 p.m. Everyone welcome - feel free to come and join us for tea, goodies and a great opportunity to visit.

Order in the eye of the beholder

By Pastor Jim MacLellan
Elk Point Baptist Church

Do you like your ducks all lined up in order? Many of us do. Some would argue that "orderliness is next to godliness." Of course God is a God of order - isn't He? If orderliness is next to godliness, I contend that orderliness is also in the eye of the beholder!

God created the sun, moon and heavenly bodies to give predictable order within our solar system. But the Bible records that during the crucifixion of Christ "from the sixth hour until the ninth hour there was darkness all over the land." According to Jewish timekeeping that would mean that from 12:00 noon to 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon there was complete darkness. In a contrasting act, God did not let the sun go down for an entire day, recorded in Joshua 10:13.

Yes, God spoke these entities into being and set them on a course of systematic, harmonious, symphonic beauty. Yes, God sustains our world with order. But when it suits His perfect wisdom He disrupts that order. In fact, Godly disorder is God's order. The truth of the matter is that God didn't stop the sun in Joshua's day or on the day when His Son died for sinners. It wasn't the sun that was disrupted. It was the earth's rotation that was disrupted. Any elementary school student knows this. God stopped the revolution of the planet Earth. Think through the implications of that!

What would happen if you were driving at 1600 k.p.h. and suddenly stopped? The result would be certain and predictable chaos. God is orderly but you and I will never figure out the system. God is predictable but you and I will never be able to box Him in. I'm glad I worship a God who is beyond my comprehension, but who is orderly because He is in control. That's really what order is, isn't it? God in control!

Who can measure the wealth and wisdom and knowledge of God? Who can understand His decisions or explain what He does?

"Has anyone known the thoughts of the Lord or given Him advice?"

Has anyone loaned something to the Lord that must be repaid?"

Everything comes from the Lord. All things were made because of Him and will return to Him. Praise the Lord forever! Amen.

(Romans 11: 33-36)

FGM students tour Italy, Greece

Rome, the original Rome. The buildings were old courthouses and they like that. The Forum is also the burial ground of Julius Caesar.

From there we took a long walk home past the Trevi Fountain. This is very beautiful, but you need to see it with someone you are in love with. It would be a great honeymoon stop, I'm sure. We stopped for supper at a little restaurant where we enjoyed live entertainment and a delicious meal. The evening was free time for shopping or whatever. Most of us went to bed, but Tammy Bober, Krisean Sakowski, Chris Watson, Nathan Jurak and Daniel Boyko were hitting the town. These five are nuts, I don't think they ever got tired, they wanted to socialize all night, every night.

The majority of us were up early the next day to take a four hour bus ride to Florence. A few stayed behind with Mr. Zapesocki and his daughter Amanda. They assured me their day in Rome was terrific, seeing even more sights of the Eternal City.

Florence was awesome right from the beginning as well. We saw a monster chapel, which held the tombs of both Michaelangelo and the famous scientist Galileo. Then we walked around the city. Every corner has a massive sculpture of some famous figure. There were too many to name them all, but the most famous was the statue of David, Madame Pentek and Mrs. Bilak didn't want to go to Florence at first but I know they are not regretting it now. We had some free time in Florence which Dallas Flamand, Grayson Bilak, Kurt Kozicky and myself found the best pizza in the world and we even found a few girls we thought liked us, but we'll never know because they didn't speak English. We all met to get back on the bus and go back to Rome for one more night. The trip was really getting good by this time because we were making new friends all the time. The other groups were all really cool people.

The next day was filled with traveling. We left Rome and traveled by bus southwest to another massive city, Naples.

Driving through Italy, though, is almost like you never leave the city. The country is so densely populated, you are always in sight of at least ten houses. And the crops there are small and strange, by our standards anyway, growing things like grapes and olives.

At Naples we got into a boat to take about a 40 minute trip to the island of Capri. Melissa Dorey was one of the few girls who felt the motion sickness on the boat. The only guy who got sick on the boat was Garrett Poulin. They were fine and would go on to enjoy the rest of the trip.

When we arrived at Capri we were taken up a half hour chair lift ride to the tip top of Capri, and the view from there is a sightseeing dream. Those are some of the best scenic pictures, the ones from the top of Capri. After coming down we were on another boat heading a different direction, this time to the city of Sorrento, where we spent the night playing cards and talking about what we had seen on the trip already.

We traveled even further south the next morning. I talked to Tanya Blacklock and she was starting to get a little afraid of the driving in Italy. You see, they have speed limits but they're not followed nor are they enforced by the law, so people driving over 170 was not a big surprise and the roads were narrow, almost as big as one lane here. No joke, I'm serious, pretty scary stuff.

We got to visit Pompeii, home of wealthy Romans 2000 years ago. In 79 AD, Mount Vesuvius, a huge volcano, erupted and covered this once great city in volcanic ash. It was interesting to see everything perfectly preserved. We saw bodies that were recovered from the ash. They didn't look so good. The people of Pompeii couldn't have been very tall, because Dallas, Chris and I bumped our heads on every doorway in the city.

From Pompeii we traveled to Brindisi where we boarded a ferry which would take us to Greece overnight. The ferry was the coolest night of the trip. It had a casino, dance floor and two restaurants for all your eating needs. The men in Italy are really forward about picking up girls and they really like blondes, so maybe the ferry wasn't so much fun for our blonde Jasmine Brown. She and a few girls from Portland were getting pretty creeped out by the old men trying to pick them up. We all got a pretty good laugh out of them. Another good laugh was Madame Pentek's first ever video game experience. She even beat one student at soccer. He let her win.

Next week: GREECE.
